November, 8-10, 1990.

"Psychosocial Rehabilitation in Psychiatry. Roles, methods, services and validations."

II National Congress of Italian Society of Psychosocial Rehabilitation (SIRP), L'Aquila, Spanish Castle.

September, 16-18, 2010.

Once again, twenty years after L'Aquila is the theatre of a National scientific event of the Society, in a period of serious difficulty of the town after the April, 2009 L'Aquila earthquake. The main shock occurred at 3:32 local time (1:32 UTC) on 6 April 2009, and was rated 5.8 on the Richter scale and 6.3 on the moment magnitude scale; its epicentre was near L'Aquila, the capital of Abruzzo, which together with surrounding villages suffered most damage. There have been several thousand foreshocks and aftershocks since December 2008, more than thirty of which had a Richter magnitude greater than 3.5.

The earthquake was felt throughout central Italy; 308 people are known to have died, making this the deadliest earthquake to hit Italy since the 1980 Irpinia earthquake. The earthquake caused damage to between 3,000 and 11,000 buildings in the medieval city of L'Aquila. Around 40,000 people who were made homeless by the earthquake found accommodation in tented camps and a further 10,000 were housed in hotels on the coast. Others sought shelter with friends and relatives throughout Italy.

The decision to hold the Conference in L'Aquila was deliberated before the earthquake and with a strong commitment the Society and the President decided to keep this location, in an ideal continuity between recovery from natural and man made disasters and recovery from serious mental illnesses.

William Anthony, Director of the Boston Center for Psychiatric Rehabilitation seems to have developed the cornerstone definition of mental health recovery. Anthony (1993) identifies recovery as "a deeply personal, unique process of changing one's attitudes, values, feelings, goals, skills and/or roles. It is a way of living a satisfying, hopeful, and contributing life even with limitations caused by the illness... Recovery involves the development of new meaning and purpose in one's life as one grows beyond the catastrophic effects of mental illness. Interestingly, the recovery experience is not an experience that is foreign to services personnel. Recovery transcends illness and the disability field itself. Recovery is a truly unifying human experience. Because all people (helpers included) experience the catastrophes of life (death of a loved one, divorce, the threat of severe physical illness, and disability), the challenge of recovery must be faced. Successful recovery from a catastrophe does not change the fact that the experience has occurred, that the effects are still present, and that one's life has changed forever. Successful recovery does mean that the person has changed, and that the meaning of these facts to the person has therefore changed. They are no longer the primary focus of one's life. The person moves on to other interests and activities".

Despite the fact that we are victims of the destruction of our homes and of our town, we did not move on to other interests and activities. The scientific interest of our group of L'Aquila is still what we have been working on for over 20 years - the rehabilitation from serious mental disorders, work pioneered in the academic field by Massimo Casacchia, past-president of the Society from 1998-2000, now Honorary member of the Board of the Society.

We'll continue our work. The life gave us the opportunity to challenge our suffering and the suffering of the population of our country and we accepted this dare of recovery.

The National President of the Italian Society of Psychiatric Rehabilitation
Rita Roncone
